

News

There is no “one-stop shopping” in OSINT. OSINT is a collection of tools, tricks and techniques, each with a limited use - on a case-by-case basis. Most tools will not apply in every situation. Such tools, combined with the investigative and logical mindset, creativity and the tenacity to keep trying, create an investigator’s OSINT toolbox.

Amazon’s Wishlist Search has been up and down... It is currently down, likely to remain so.

Articles of Interest

- Bellingcate Workflow Graphic
  - A different looking workflow visualization worth observing. How does your workflow stack up with this?
- Bellingcat Investigation Writeup
  - An awesome writeup of how OSINT techniques helped solve a fugitive case in Europe. Totally worth your time to read.

Toolbox Additions – R&D approved tools to add to your investigative process

- Duck Duck Go Search Engine – Yea, yea, you all know about this one already, but aside from the privacy, we have found that search results on businesses are more pure because there are not “Google paid ads” getting in the way, giving you better results on business searches.
  - <https://duckduckgo.com/>
  - Searching is also private
- Alternative Search Engines
  - In our workflow/OSINT protocol we call for using several of these, but this is one of the more organized and comprehensive lists out there, many with very specific purposes.
- More Google Dorks organized for easy duplication.

Tools to Test Out

- <https://twitter.com/HowsMyDrivingNY>
  - A Twitterbot for running NY License Plates for traffic camera violations.
    - Here is the NYC link to run directly with the source – NYC Violations Link
    - And a GUI by the user - <https://www.howsmydrivingny.nyc/>